AGENDA

SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 2018

8:30 am to 10:00 am

Finding a Better Way to Support Individuals with Complex Needs

Jaquie Mills, M Ed, Managing Director, Microboards Australia

Jaquie was a single mother with a son with complex support needs. She was overwhelmed and under-supported, faced with anxiety about an uncertain future. She set out to discover if there was a better way to plan support for all our sons and daughters to live a good life as adults.

Today, Jaquie's son Eli is supported by a microboard. His microboard formalized his natural supports by forming a legal entity to help him achieve his goals. His microboard provides security & safeguards his future; protects his right to be involved in decisions about his life; supports him in employment, continuing education, relationships, and leisure; and has fostered strong friendships and reciprocal relationships. Jaquie will share her journey and how it links with families working to form microboards right here in Ontario.

10:30 to 12:00

Helping or Hindering: the role of adults facilitating friendship opportunities

Dr. Zachary Rossetti, Professor of Special Education

As the brother of a student with complex needs, Zachary noticed that inclusive education alone does not lead to friendships between students with and without disabilities. As a professor, Dr. Rossetti's research identifies the ways that educators can increase and improve friendship opportunities between students with and without disabilities. His approach inherently shifts the focus from the deficits of students with disabilities to the environmental contexts that support all students to participate, interact, and ultimately, to develop friendships with each other. Dr Rossetti will discuss how educators can partner with parents and siblings to facilitate friendship opportunities for all students.

12:30 pm to 2:00 pm

Leveraging our power as parent advocates in Ontario

Erin Sheldon, M Ed, CEO of Integration Action for Inclusion

IAI has supported parents across Ontario to use person-centred planning tools to foster relationships, raise expectations, improve goals and programming in IEPs, and create a vision for our son or daughter's future. But what do we do when the school team appears uninterested in finding new ways to ensure our son or daughter's education is laying the foundation for a good adult life? We will discuss how person-centred planning fits into Ontario guidelines for effective, individualized transition planning at all stages of our student's educational career. Learn new leverage points to achieve the individualized program your student needs.

2:00 pm to 3:00 pm
